The Economic Status of Women in South Carolina

Women in South Carolina have made considerable advances in recent years but still face inequities that often prevent them from reaching their full potential. Since the 2004 Status of Women in the States report was published, the gender wage gap in South Carolina has narrowed, a higher percentage of women have bachelor's degrees, and a larger share of women live in poverty. South Carolina still ranks in the worst third in the nation for both women's Employment & Earnings and Poverty & Opportunity.

If current trends continue,
women in South Carolina will not see equal pay until the year
2088.<sup>1</sup>

The difference between women's and men's median annual earnings, $11,000, would pay for 2.6 years of community college tuition in South Carolina.<sup>2</sup>

Key Findings

- South Carolina's grade for women's Employment & Earnings, D, has remained the same since the 2004 Status of Women in the States report (Table 1). Its grade for women's Poverty & Opportunity, D+, has improved since 2004.
- Women in South Carolina aged 16 and older who work full-time, year-round have median annual earnings of $34,000, which is 75.6 cents on the dollar compared with men who work full-time, year-round (Table 1). Hispanic women earn just 54 cents for every dollar earned by White men (Table 2).
- If employed women in South Carolina were paid the same as comparable men, their poverty rate would be reduced by nearly half and poverty among employed single mothers would drop by more than half (Figure 1).<sup>3</sup>
- 56.7 percent of women in South Carolina aged 16 and older are in the labor force, compared with 65.1 percent of men (Table 1). Among women, Black women have the highest labor force participation rate, at 60.8 percent (Table 2).
- A growing share of employed women in South Carolina are in managerial or professional occupations. About 39 percent of women hold these positions, which tend to require a four-year degree and often have higher wages and employment benefits.
- In South Carolina, 35.9 percent of businesses in 2012 were owned by women, up from 27.6 percent in 2007.
- Approximately 28 percent of women aged 25 and older in South Carolina have a bachelor's degree or higher, an increase of about 9 percentage points since 2000 (Table 1).
- 87.3 percent of South Carolina's women aged 18 to 64 have health insurance coverage, which is below the national average for women of 89.4 percent (Table 1).
- South Carolina ranks 32nd nationally for the share of women in poverty; 16.7 percent of women in the state aged 18 and older are in poverty, compared with 13.9 percent of South Carolina's men (Table 1).

Impact of Equal Pay on Working Women's Poverty in South Carolina, 2016: Current Values and Estimates if Working Women Earned the Same as Comparable Men

Notes: IWPR calculations based on the Current Population Survey Annual Social and Economic supplements 2014-2016 (for calendar years 2013-2015). Comparable men and women are of the same age, have the same level of education, work the same number of hours, and have the same urban/rural status. For analysis methodology, see IWPR briefing paper #C455, The Impact of Equal Pay on Poverty and the Economy <https://iwpr.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/04/C455.pdf>, by Jessica Milli, Yixuan Huang, Heidi Hartmann, and Jeff Hayes.

Median Annual Earnings for Women and Men in South Carolina Working Full-Time, Year-Round, by Race and Ethnicity, 2016

Notes: Calculated using three years of data (2014-2016) from the American Community Survey. Racial groups are non-Hispanic. Calculated by the Institute for Women's Policy Research.

NOTES

1. Linear projection based on rate of progress in closing the gender wage gap since 1959. Projection is based on the ratio of women's to men's earnings among full-time, year-round workers aged 16 and older. Calculations are based on the Decennial Censuses from 1960 through 2000, and 2001-2015 American Community Survey microdata.
2. The 2015-16 average undergraduate tuition and required fees for in-state, full-time students in degree-granting public two-year institutions in South Carolina is $4,219.
3. Comparable includes women and men of the same age and level of education, who work the same number of hours, and have the same urban/rural status.

About the Institute for Women's Policy Research

The Institute for Women's Policy Research (IWPR) conducts rigorous research and disseminates its findings to address the needs of women, promote public dialogue, and strengthen families, communities, and societies. The Institute's research strives to give voice to the needs of women from diverse ethnic and racial backgrounds across the income spectrum and to ensure that their perspectives enter the public debate on ending discrimination and inequality, improving opportunity, and increasing economic security for women and families. The Institute works with policymakers, scholars, and public interest groups to design, execute, and disseminate research and to build a diverse network of individuals and organizations that conduct and use women-oriented policy research. IWPR's work is supported by foundation grants, government grants and contracts, donations from individuals, and contributions from organizations and corporations. IWPR is a 501(c)(3) tax-exempt organization that also works in affiliation with the Program on Gender Analysis in Economics at American University.

About The Status of Women in the States

This Fact Sheet is a part of the Institute for Women's Policy Research's series on the status of women across the United States, begun in 1996. The Status of Women in the States project uses data from U.S. government and other sources to analyze women's status in each state and the United States overall, rank and grade states on a set of indicators for six topical areas, and provide additional data on women's status in states across the nation. The Institute for Women's Policy Research has published individual reports on the status of women since 1996 in each state and the District of Columbia. The reports have been used to highlight women's progress and the obstacles they continue to face and to encourage policy and programmatic changes that can improve women's opportunities.
